Clothes, stationeries provided to poor children

Post Report

KATHMANDU, May 6 (PR) - Social workers from Germany and Holland, in association with a local organization, distributed clothes and stationeries to the children of laborers working in a stone factory and other poor children amidst a function here Sunday.

During the function organized by Partnership Society - Nepal (PS-Nepal), Susanne Lucker from Germany and Ines Von Rosentiel from Holland distributed clothes and stationery materials such as pens and copies to the children of laborers who are unable to send their children to schools.

The European duo also contributed 400 kilograms of clothes to sick children at Kanti Children's Hospital and other technical equipment to the hospital management. Speaking on the occasion, Lucker said that she is helping the deprived children of 52 countries worldwide.

Lucker said that she is doing such social activities on the occasion of 125th anniversary of Henkel KGaA, a Germany-based chemical company.

Lucker's team also comprises photo journalists including Axel Kreutz, who works for Cologne News Corporation and other European TV channels. Kreutz is going to make a documentary on the status of Nepalese children, which will be broadcast from European channel including the BBC.
